NUMBER 8 9 AUG 68

And also glancers, scanners and thumb throughers.... Here we are once again perched peacefully on our quiet, stable, invisible platform beneath the deep and dark azure waters of our stomping grounds - namely: the Pacific. Yes here we are all alone, sealed up together with the air conditioners, the ice cream machine and about forty million pediculus corprises. Can't you just imagine one of them mutating in the lower level of the reactor compartment and some innocent lieutenant looking through the sight glass to see a giant mean eyed paresite slowly champing it's way through the bulkhead towards him.... Shades of SEAVIEW!!

And if that wasn't dilemma enough, to top it all off, some low down scurvy scums stole the Bear's bear. Yes shipmates, while you slept contented in your bunks thieves and kid/bearnappers crept about in the night to privateer the innocent security symbol/mascot of one of our most staunch torpedomen. To add insult to injury the mauraders left a note of threat warning the much bereaved against informing the law. Poor papa Bear was so upset that he immediately launched a one-man investigation ala Perry Mason style in quest of the culprits. Pear Bear - only the shadow knows what evil lurks in the hearts of man... He He He!

We wonder if it was the same culprits who abscounded with Louie Long's head washer. A head washer, contrary to what you are probably thinking is a small circular object approximately three inches in diameter made of one of those new miricle plastics and is sometimes referred to as a scalp scrubber. What ever you want to call it, Louie sure would like to get his back.

With all this criminal activity going on it almost makes one long to be back on the mainland where all they have is race riots and murders.

In case you haven't had the experience, one of the most thrilling thrills to be had nowadays is to take a shower in the torpedo room, but we give you fair warning - you gotta be a man to take it. Say - do you suppose the water temperature could be set at near boiling to prevent those whatchamacallets we talked about in the first paragraph?

And speaking of eatoffs, the time for the Chocolate pie one is getting short so if your Division hasen't selected it's champ yet you'd better get with it. Speaking for the Admin Dept we give you fair warning that our man, Hog Hassel is now in training.

The last of the contests is now over and Alice and the Pia peaged and havled enough timber to capture the cribbage doubles... Yes we heard you the other night LT Stick when you asked "what kind of fish makes a noise like a meaning cat?", and we also heard the Control Room chorus promptly answer in unison, "A CATFISH:"

Well I quess we have pinged away enough now on the old SOS-4 so we'll go passive here leaving you with these words - "We hope they catch you mysterious carrier, and you to bearnappers, and when they do we hope they make you stand in the Torpedo Room shower until you are as clean as a lobster...

Gooden, Scurvy who has been on the FBI's ten most wanted list was apprehended yesterday while holding up a Taxi-cab driver. Scurvey was holding the freightened taxi driver over his head, preparing to fling him to the ground when a passing patrol car spotted the fight and came to the rescue. Investigation later revealed that the taxi driver was Irma, Scurvy - Gooden's wife. The Gooden's were interrupted by police in the middle of a family quarrel.

One of the largest vice raids even taking place in Bemidji, Minnesota took place last Wednesday when the local vice squad, coupled with units of the local air national guard and volunteer firement raided the Bemidji General Store where an illegal checker game was going on. The participants in the game were immediately placed under arrest and are being held for $15 bail. It is rumored that confiscated in the raid were the gambeling stakes found on the premises amounting to a total of well over seven dollars.

Glenn Skinner, the newest and possibly most colorful of the Presidential candidates has been touring the country vigerously picking up a substantial percentage of the hippy vote. Glenn who is an admitted LSD user, has been married three times, is an ultra conservative liberal, high scool drop out, pacifist, pot smoker and well known homosexual has been wooing the potential voters with promises of a spectacular new clean up campaign in American politics.

Sidney, Scum... One of the recent suvivers of the "Stay buried in a coffin for sixty days" craze today revealed some of the problems encountered during a coffin voyage. Sidney just emerged last week after an ordealing sixty days in a small plastic lined coffin... He said, "Well one of the worst problems which I encountered was that I missed fresh salads because everything has to be forced down to you through a small rubber hose. Another problem which I encountered was trying to force things up through a small rubber hose. I would definitely have to say that the thing I missed most during my entoumbment was the facilities of a modern bathroom.

The below poem, which was contributed to SKUPE, shows just how it feels to be woke up for the midwatch, after a hard night of watching movies and after having played cards all night long the last three days.

"SPRING DAWN"

As I awoke this morning, When all sweet things are born, A robin perched upon my sill To signal coming morn.

The bird was fragile, bright and gay And sweetly did it sing; Tuned softly with a cherry song, So too, my heart did sing.

The sun gave to his red breast glow, And as he paused... a lull.. I gently closed the window And crushed his friggin skull.....

THE SKUPE DEDICATED THE FOLLOWING DITTY TO A CERTAIN NAVIGATOR

"The man with the Grey Flanneled Compass"

When I was a young lad my heart took the notion And I knew that I just had to get out on the ocean To tell the tall tails and lean on tossing rails And chase the porpoises and sail with the whales

So I went to the Academy just like it had to be And now I'm an officer and everyone looks up to me I joined the submarine force to sail under the sea And now that I'm in it everyone looks down to me

They made me a Navigator of the sleek ship SARGO And when we sailed off I knew we had far to go So I charted the charts and plotted the way to go And how we ever managed I swear that I'll never know

Because I am slightly short on navigating ability And when I say go that a way they do it to humor me So we cruised all over the whole Pacific ocean Going this way and that away when I took the notion

Now the terrible thing that I worry about all alone Is how the devil I'll ever navigate us back home Because if the truth were known there'd be much discord Because I get lost on a small cribbage board...

HOW DO YOU GO AROUND THE WORLD IN FIVE MINUTES?

Anyone that was on the SARGO from 18 January to 26 February 1960 would be able to tell you how to go around the world in five minutes. It would not be in a spaceship, or some serodynamic missle, but rather on a slow submarine circling the North Pole. For during the above period the SARGO completed one of the most extensive under ice exploration of the Arctic Ocean ever attempted, for which the Commanding Officer was awarded the Legion of Mericand the crew the Navy Unit Commendation.

In view of SARGO's previous arctic experiences and the fact that because she is one of the few nuclear submarine equipped for such research, and due to the fact that continual exploration is going on, we thought you might appreciate reading some information about the mysterious frozen land of the north.

No one piece of real estate has so little to offer to the man who explores it as the frozen, barron north polar regions. But still man has always struggled to reach the north pole. The first recorded visit to the edge of the ice pack was the Greek Navigator and astronomer Pytheas, who in 330 B.C. sailed adventurously northward in his galley from Massilia, which is known now as Marseille, France.

From 800-1400 AD the Vikings conducted many Icelandic cruises. It is interesting to know that they settled as far south as Newfoundland and in 1963 conclusive proof was found in the form of the ruins of a Norse community which was built about 500 years before Columbus's discovery (or as it should now be known - Rediscovery) of America. The rugged Vikings sailed the Arctic in open, square sailed boats, without charts of navigation instruments (how about that Mr. Honadle?) guided only be experience and seamans intuition.

In the 14, 15, and 16th centurys the English, French, Dutch, Spanish and just about everyone else got into the act by looking for the Northeast Passages which would open up new trade routes. It was not until 1879 though that a guy named Adolf Erik sailed his ship into the Pacific having departed from Norway. In 1915 a Commander Vilkitski (Ski for short) became the first man to sail the Northeast passage from east to west.

The North Pole itself was not reached until April 6, 1909 when Admiral Robert E. Peary of the U.S. Navy and his five companions (1 Negro and 4 Eskimo) realized Peary's dream by making the journey by dog sled.

The word Arctic derives from the Greek word Arktos meaning bear, suggesting that the Arctic is the area swept by the constellation of the Big Dipper or Great Bear as the earth turns beneath it. Arctic ocean water is formed from waters from the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, draining from surrounding land areas, and melt water from sea ice, thus producing many changes and different types of regions.

The more than 5,000,000 square miles of the Arctic Ocean are hordered by Alaska, Canada, Greenland, Europe, and Siberia. The ocean consists of two major basin seperated by the Lomonosov Ridge which has a minimum depth of 900 meters and a sill depth of 1500 meters (a meter is almost 40 inches).

In general the Arctic Ocean is comprised of three vertically separated water masses: The surface layer (Arctic water) which stays at the surface at a temperature of at or near the freezing point; the layer immediately below the Arctic water from 150 to 250 meters down and having temperatures of from 0 to as high as 1°C; the layer from the Atlantic water to the bottom with temperatures from -70° to -80°.

Our knowledge of biological oceanography is minimal for the regions of the central Arctic Ocean which lie beyond the range of icebreakers and light aircraft. Extensive collections are required from the whole Arctic and Subarctic area. Plankton samples have been collected in the Arctic using automatic sail-mounted devices on nuclear submarines, and undoubtedly more will be collected in the future.

The North Pole itself, is located close to the Lumonsov Ridge and the Nautilus took a sounding there of 4,290 m (or approximately 1400 feet) which is pretty shallow, all things considered.

The Arctic ocean is unique among the oceans of the world in that a major portion of it is continental shelf. Ice exerts a dominating influence on operations in the Arctic Ocean, since the Polar Basin is for all practical purposes covered with ice the entire year. This condition renders surface ship navigation practically impossible and restricts the surfacing capability of submarines. The deepest ice keel observed to date was a draft of 153 feet which the SKATE encountered in 1962. Polar ice is normally 10 to 13 feet thick in winter, decreasing to about 6 to 10 feet by the end of summer.

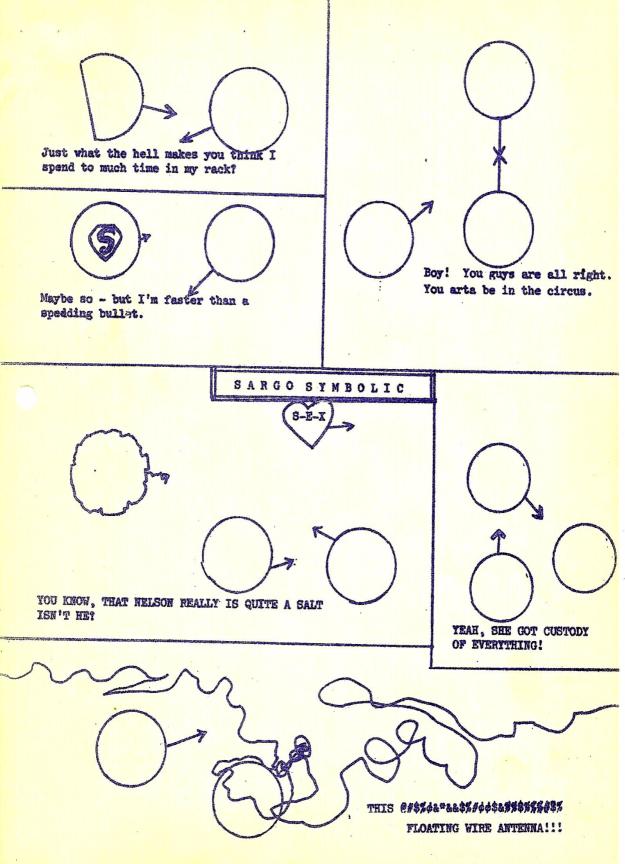

The largest individual circulating pieces of ice circulating in the Arctic Ocean are tabular bergs knowns as ice islands, and the largest is some 300 miles square in area. These are readily discernable from the pack ice because of the thickness of their ice and ice island drifting stations have been stationed on them.

Icebergs, another form in which ice commonly appears in the Arctic, are formed in large numbers from the glaciers of Greenland, but these do not reach the polar seas because of the surface currents surrounding the island.

The Arctic Basin is covered in all seasons with the cold core of the great circumpolar westerly vortex and temperatures range from-90°F which is the mean average temperature at the North Pole to -26°F in central Greenland and 10°F at Point Barrow, Alaska. A feature of the atmosphere in any cold climate and one particularly characteristic of the Arctic is the low water vapor content. Because of the water vapor capacity being relatively low any vapor added to Arctic air quickly condenses forming ice fog, resulting in very low humidity and skin and nostrils that become quickly dry.

Snowfall appears to be more frequent than it really is because the surface snow is often picked up and carried by the wind; thus whenever the wind speed is over 15 MPH there is a powdery snow blowing about. Midwinter is usually free of appreciable snowfall, significant snowfall occurring largely during the months preceeding and following the warm season (April-June and September-November). In summer prolonged periods of rain may occur, which in combination with the fog and melt water makes life on the pack or on ice islands extremely unpleasant.

Now we have a few choice lots left.....

Dean Scabbu:

Boy boy boy oh boy do I have a problem, about 40 million of them to be exact. I am so embarrassed I don't even know how to explain my problem. What should I do?

Scratchy

Dear Scratchu:

Try Black Flag and scratching.

Dear Scabbu:

Is it all right to read Playboy Magazine with one hand?

Wondering:

Dear Wonder:

Sure, Chief Cicero! We understand your problem.

Dear Scabby:

I just wanted to thank you. I took your advice and now I am clean and qualified.

Ex-dirty

Dear Scabby:

Someone told me that in the Naval Academy they teach officers to believe that white hats are sneaky, low and not to be trusted. Is this true?

A whitehat

Dear Whitehat:

I'm not sure if you mean do they teach officer's to believe that white hats are sneaky low and not to be trusted or if whitehats are sneaky low and not to be trusted but in either case the answer is yes.

Dere Skabie:

Wie du peple think us auxelierie men or dum?

A auxelierie men

Dean AUX:

I am surprised at you. I have heard people refer to auxiliarymen as ignorant, unkouth, unkepmt, unclean, knieve, childish and so forth but no one to my knowledge has ever said that you were hard of hearing or dumb.

Dear Scabby:

I have a girl friend who is extremely ugly but she still has a figure like, parden the expression, a brick lavetory. The other day I heard some fellows talking about putting a sack over the head and they are all the same. Do you think I should try this?

RM

Dear Robert:

Yes, the next time you have the opportunity slip a sack over your head and she may not even notice you.

Er.. Captain, this is the OOD. About that weather report you wanted - Now you arn't going to believe this but....

Conn. Sonar... The contact at 26

Conn. Sonar.... The contact at 268 is definitely a reef noise. I can positively evaluate the rolling reverberations of variable osculating frequencies as waves breaking over a reef......

You navigated us in here - you figure out how to surface us!

Fix the trim pump, fix the reactor, rig the torpedo room... What the hell do you think I am sir? Another Kowalski NEXT SUNDAY, AUGUST 11 1968, COMMENCING AT 1630 IN THE CREW'S MESS WILL BE

FIRST: THE EAB MANIFOLD RACE

A couple of long winded characters have stated that they can rum from the Torpedo Room back to the Stern Room and then Back to the Torpedo Room without breathing. This is their chance. The rules of the race are as folloes:

- 1. Heats of two men will be run.
- 2. Each racer will be tightly strapped into an EAB Mask in the Torpedo Room. The mask will be hooked up to an EAB manifold in the Torpedo Room. At the given signal the contestants will unhook their hose and run like hell for the Stern Room, stopping where ever they like to take on oxygen. They will run back to the Stern Room and touch number seven Torpedo Tube (The Stern Room Watch will be the judge in the Stern Room) and then race back to the Torpedo Room.
- 3. The men will be timed and the man who runs the distance both ways in the shortest time will be declared the winner and presented a prize.

THEN::::: THE CHOCOLATE PIE EATING CONTEST

THE CONTEST RULES ARE AS FOLLOWS:

- 1. Each contestant will compete in an eatoff with one other contestant.
- 2. The two eatoff contenders will have their hands tied behind their back before the contest begins.
- 3. They will each be given one chocolate pie and at a given signal told to go to town.
- 4. They will compete against each other as well as the other candidates.
- 5. The contestant that devours his pie the quickest, in the best style, and pleases the judges most with his performance will win.

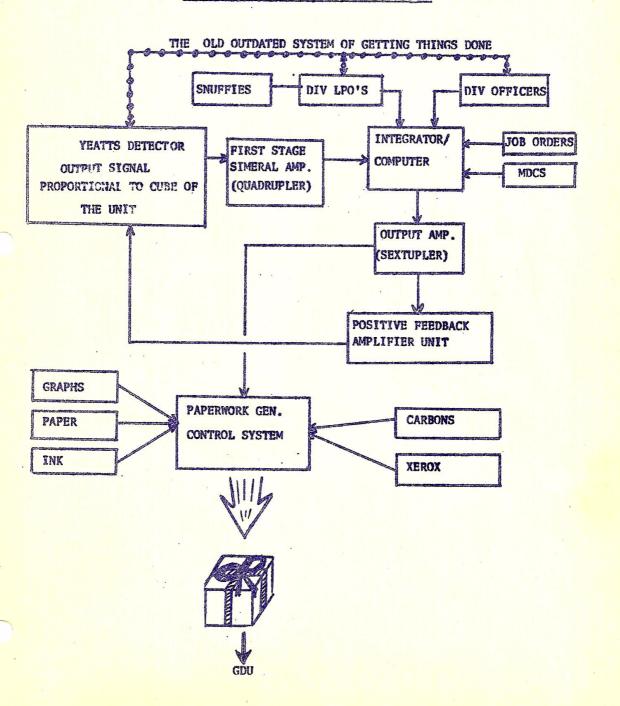

If your Division hasen't entered it's Garbage Gut yet now is the time to do so. All contestants will be assigned to an eatoff by the contest judges just prior to the contest. The following people have agreed to serve as judges for the contest: The Captain, COB, Chief HUCKABEE (Who made the pies) and Chief CICERO (Who has a sadistic sense of humor). Photographic coverage will be provided by SIMERAL and PENN who have agreed to furnish each contestant with a photograph of himself participating..... It's all in fun so sign up now. How about it Wardroom??????

ATTEXXXXXX

After the two above contests are over there will be a Christmas Caroling Party in the Crew's Mess led by McAVAY. We will pass out words to some of the good old Christmas Carols such as White Christmas, Here Comes Santa Claus,
The First Noel, Heark the Herald, Silvers Bells, Dashing through the Snow, etc. etc. and closing with the New Years Song - Old Hangs Sign.... See you there

Listen my shipmate and ye shall hear A terrible tale of sorrow and fear Listen to the story I tell you with care For this is the story of poor Bear's bear

It happened so quickly one cold lonely night When bearnappers bearnapped Bear's bear out of sight They stole it away from the Stern Room it's said While the poor papa bear lay all snuggled in bed

His son was kidnapped and taken away When Bear woke up he didn't know what to say He snorted and bellered and got all upset But the Bear ain't seen his baby bear yet

He searched high and low and throughout the ship Hoping the bearnappers had made a slip But the more that he searched the less he could find For the bearnapper ring is a terrible kind

Now old Bear is lonely and terribly blue Because a warning note is his only clue He swears he will catch them andt hen do them in But his only problem is he don't know where to begin

He has searched high and low throughout the whole ship But the clever bearnappers made nary a slip He has scoured the whole boat and looked everyplace But he hasen't seen nothing of little bear's face

Now old Bear is worried and in quite a spot Because he can't cope with this terrible plot He knows that the bearnappers are torturing his son And he won't give up till the battle is won

So the Bear bravely searches through each lonely night Hoping and praying with all of his might That he'll find his baby bear all safe and sound And he'll never stop till his baby he's found

We beg you bearnappers have mercy on him And return his baby to him once again Please give the baby bear back to his pappy And everything once more will be nice and happy

The moral to this story if you really must know And please remember that the SKUPE told you so Is that bears belong in a forrest where they can be free Not here on the SARGO where the bearnappers be.

A giant woman over six feet, dragged a short man, no more than 5 feet into court and accused him of rape. The magistrate, who was a pretty good judge of distance, pondered over this charge, then spoke to the woman. "It seems incredible, madam. Your so tall and he's so short. I can't believe the charge is true." "Your honer," she shouted, "it most certainly is true. Although I'll admit I did stoop a little."

A pair of sailors got to drinking in the bar and they struk up a friendly conversation. Sure enough the subject soon got around to sex. "Say," said the first sailor, smirking, "have you ever been so drunk that you kissed a woman on the naval?" The second sailor propped himself up and said, Oh I've been much drunker."

Her precocious six-year old daughter came tugging at the mother's skirt, asking "Mommy, can I have a baby?" "Of course not dear," the mother replied, without missing a stroke of her ironing. "Are you sure?", the little girl persisted. "Certainly," said the mother. As she ran out to rejoin her playmates in the yard the little girl called out, "OK fellas, same game!"

Two Jewish mothers who had lived in the same block in Brooklyn when their children where growing up, but hadn't seen each other in years, happened to meet at a bridge luncheon in a swank hotel in Manhattan. After a tearful embrace, they retired to a corner to chat. "And how are your two boys, William and Bernard?, the one woman asked the other. "William is an attourney, and a full partner in an important New York law firm," the second woman responded with pride. "And it's Doctor Bernard, if you please; with so many patients that even his mother needs an appointment to see her son in the afternoon!... and your son, Herman, how is he?" The first mother's eyes dropped, but only for a moment. "Herman is a homosexual," she said. "That's wonderful!" exclaimed her friend. "And where's his office?"

Limbo dancing was invented by a Scotsman trying to enter a pay toilet.

His first day in the Navy the young sailor was issued a comb, and then they marched him through a line and cut his hair off. The second day the recruit was issued a toothbrush, and then a dentist pulled three of his teeth. The third day he was issued an athletic supporter, and he went A.W.O.L.

This week's brain teaser is a numer problem. Using each of the numbers I through 16 only once in each 16 block square, see if you can complete them in such a way that the sum of each column, each row, each diagonal, the four corners, and the four center boxes is 34. The starting numbers in each case are supplied for you and must not be changed. This is a good one and a prize will be awarded to the first person completing the entire brain twister correctly.
